Seymour's "Friends."

It is falsely asserted that Seymour addressed the peace-loving citizens of New York, and not the rioters, when he called his audience of blackguards, incendiaries and murderers, his "friends." Well, here is the speech that he made on Tuesday, July 14, 1863:

My friends, I have come down here from the quiet of the country to see what was the difficulty, to learn what all this trouble was concerning the draft. Let me assure you that I am your friend. [Upbraiding cheering.] You have been my friends—friends of "Yes, yes!" "That's so!" "We are, and will be again!"—and now I assure you, my fellow citizens, that I am here to show you a test of my friendship. [cheers.] I wish to inform you that I have sent my adjutant-general to Washington to confer with the authorities there and have this draft suspended and stopped. [Vociferous cheering.] I ask you as good citizens to wait for his return; and I assure you that I will do all that I can to see that there is no inequality and no wrong done to any one. I wish you to take good care of all property as good citizens, and see that every person is safe. The safe-keeping of property and persons rests with you, and I charge you to disturb neither. It is your duty to maintain the good order of the city, and I know you will do it. I wish you now to separate as good citizens, and you can assemble again whenever you wish to do so. I ask you to leave all to me now, and I will see to your rights. Wait until my adjutant returns from Washington, and you will be satisfied. Listen to me, and see that there is no harm done to persons or property, but retire peacefully.

"The riot was got up on account of the draft, and Seymour, it will be seen, promised his friends that the draft should be 'suspended and stopped.'" The audience was so peace-loving that it was necessary to assure them that New York would nullify a law of the United States! O dear friends, Seymour says, stop your miscellaneous burning and killing, and all you require shall be given unto you!
